In the Old Field.

Allen & Co. completed their test on the Ryan farm in the Dent's run field yesterday and got but a small showing of oil in the thirty-foot sand. This makes four failures that have been had in this field in the last two weeks. Deimar Oil Co.'s No. 22 and 23 on the Hays, Clayton & Co. on the Straits and the Allen & Co. test on the Ryan all scoring failures. The Fred Bartlett well on the Batson farm continues to produce at 265 barrels which indicates that a pool of large dimensions may yet be developed in that field.

INVESTIGATE ALLEGED FRAUDS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 18.—Forty subpoenas were issued by the United States Circuit Court here for witnesses who will appear before the Federal grand jury at term of court, which will be held beginning next Tuesday at Webster Springs. Evidence alleging frauds in past elections in Southern West Virginia will be introduced, it is said. The trails of several alleged postoffice robberies are on the docket.

SLATE KILLS MANY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 18.—Of the 41 deaths in coal mines of West Virginia in July, 11 occurred in the mines of McDowell county, and eight in Raleigh. This is shown by the monthly report made by the Department of Mines. More than half the fatalities were due to falls of slate. Mines cars inside the mine caused the men, while electricity killed four men, in two of which there was a voltage of more than 500 and two a voltage under 250.

CONTRIBUTE MUCH RELIEF

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 18.—Approximately $20,000 has been contributed in and near Charleston for the relief of sufferers from the floods last week on Cabin Creek and Coal River. Distribution of food and clothing is being made from 17 bases established by civilian committees to day along the devastated valleys, and so far as investigators can learn, every family in need has been supplied, with all necessities. The relief work will be continued just as long as there is need of it.

WASHINGTON NEWS GOSSIP

By CHARLES BROOKS SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18.—If a member of Congress makes any move toward political strategy and selfishness he doesn't stand much of a chance of getting by with it. Attention is bound to be called to it, even if there is merely a suspicion of it. The officials of the national administration are not exempt, either. This is the time when the nerves of the statesmen are screwed to a high political key and are very sensitive.

Senator Penrose told Senator Chilton that if he got the Senate to pass the $200,000 he was asking by resolution for West Virginia flood sufferers, he would succeed in getting a very liberal contribution from the treasury of the United States to help his candidacy to succeed himself. The Senate cut it down to $100,000 and passed it. The House hasn't and is not likely to. The House passed a help resolution of a different kind, which was fathered by the entire West Virginia delegation in that branch and introduced by Littlepage, in whose district the disaster occurred. This counted West Virginia "in" on the $500,000 appropriation already passed to aid sufferers in the flood zones in Southern states. If Senator Chilton will discard his resolution and take up the House one, it will probably be passed in the Senate. Otherwise, there will be delay and disappointment, for Shirley, of Kentucky, has served notice that the Chilton resolution shall not pass the House. As ranking member of the appropriations committee he can make good his threat.

In the meantime, President Wilson is addressing himself in person to about 600 leaders of the railroad brotherhoods on the subject of the threatened strike and how to stop it. This delegation was brought here by the President's own request that he might talk to them. Opponents of the administration say with a sneer that this is just another political play on the part of the President, and a grandstand play at that. They declare that there was no actual need of summoning these men here, and they go into details with a lot of pointed criticism about "cheap politics," which but adds spice and ginger to the national campaign, now fairly in swing.

The customary cannon and cannon-ball loaning bill has passed the House another sure sign that the country is rapidly sinking into the throes of a presidential contest. Every House member who wanted to borrow a cannon or several of them, along with the cannon balls, to send to some town or city in his district for use as ornamentation on the public square, found it an easy matter to get what he wanted. All the West Virginia members got their share. Not a one overlooked this bet, and West Virginia towns that cannot boast a cannon will be few and far between. Sutherland got two for Parkersburg and Huntington; Cooper landed one for Princeton. Neely copped out one for Weston. Littlepage had Charleston on his list, and Col. George Bowers saw to it that Keyser and a few more places in his backlist landed a trophy.

A batch of pension bills in behalf of the following named persons were introduced by Congressman Neely: Increases—For Henry H. Gusman, Elias Baker, William L. Paucott, Isaac Boyce, Anthony Headley, Joshua Markley, Isaac Grimes, Jesse R. Mercer, James Flanagan, John Douglass, John F. Downey, Charles White, James L. T. Sharp, Samuel H. Sloan, J. W. Vandine, A. J. Porter.

Original pensions — For Mary C. Wykoff, Elizabeth A. Davis, Sarah M. Foster, Elizabeth Kirkman, George H. Smith, Belle Satterfield, Alfred Rivers, Carrie E. Nevil, Lloyd Shaver, Walter Zogg, W. A. Zinn and A. B. Ero.

Miss Florence Levy, of Charleston, well known to and popular with constituents of Congressman Littlepage, has been in the hospital for several days. She underwent an operation for throat trouble, a painful but not a serious ordeal. She is now able to be at her desk again.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas and children will arrive here Friday in their car from a motor trip through the New England states. They will be joined here by Congressman Edward Cooper who will accompany them to Bramwell. Mrs. Thomas is a sister of Mr. Cooper. The Thomases have resided in Columbus, O., but will take up their residence in Huntington before the winter, the better to enable Dr. Thomas to give attention to his coal mining interests in the Pocahontas coal field.

A marriage license was issued here to Bruce McDonald, of Inwood, W. Va., and Irene L. Capper, of Winchester, Va.

The National Negro Christian Congress, which has been in session in this city, has adjourned. The Rev. W. H. B. Taylor, of West Virginia, was elected vice president. Resolutions endorsing Charles Evans Hughes' candidacy for President were unanimously adopted in the concluding hours of the Congress.
